Ebonie Marie is a huge life force, humble artist and a breakthrough quadruple-threat actor, songwriter, choreographer and poet! She has been writing music since age nine, dancing professionally since age thirteen and acting on national and international stages since age fifteen. Her latest portrayal of the sassy, quick-witted Louise in Seven Guitars had the Theatre community raving. Her creation of the short film series, Fresh Film Fridays allows her to bring some of her writing to life and explore her wide range of dramatic and comedic characters.

From the first time she watched In Living Color, she knew she wanted to study and master improv and sketch comedy. Her dream was and still is to be in front of a live studio audience starring in her own sitcom. She did her first stand up set at just seventeen and had the entire audience in tears of laughter. "Improv keeps you on your feet and hands!" As a host, she has become a fan favorite at the renown BET Experience in Los Angeles, CA. Her choreography skills have afforded her the opportunity to work on The Lion King 25th Anniversary show at Disneyland.

Ebonie Marie was first introduced to the Stanislavski technique in high school. She continued her education of the craft with Meisner technique and performance training and earned her Bachelor of Arts Degree in Theatre Arts. She is always studying and developing as a writer and performer.
